The Unschooled Mind How Children

In the Unschooled Mind Howard Gardner proposes some progressive reforms to our education system with a focus on "genuine understanding" . It takes a look at how children form theories and beliefs about their world at an early age. These theories have strong foundations. Often times these theories clash with what they learn at school.

Teaching fills the mind with artificial associations that must be got rid of before the child can develop independent ideas out of actual experiences. Unschooling provides a unique opportunity to step away from systems and methods, and to develop independent ideas out of actual experiences, where the child is truly in pursuit of knowledge, not the other way around.

The Unschooled Mind: How Children Think and How Schools ...

Conceptions about the world, its rules, stereotypes and values which become embedded in the "Unschooled Mind" of the five-year old child are remarkably robust and resistant to change. There is an overwhelming body of research evidence, accumulated in recent decades, that schooling (and later education) has little impact upon these intuitive and common-sense understandings.
